Improving hardware capabilities must for deeptech ecosystem: Nasscom V-C

AVIK DAS
Bengaluru, 6 August

India should focus on developing its hardware capabilities and deeptech architecture for the next phase of growth as software capabilities have hit a limit, Nasscom vice-chairman Srikanth Velamakanni said on Thursday.

The deeptech industry still lacks entrepreneurial energy, risk appetite for big bets, conviction and product building, even as funding for it remains challenging, he added. However, the government and the venture capital ecosystem are attempting to improve this, with certain sectors such as space technology and defence technology showing improvement in funding amounts.

"The low-hanging fruit of software services is gone as AI (artificial intelligence) and agentic AI have made coding easier and thus, easy to make software. There is an abundance of it now," he said at a Nasscom event.

Nasscom President Rajesh Nambiar also said that while startup funding at the seed level remains a challenge, the industry is closer than ever to solve the problem. With so much of computing power and graphics processing unit (GPU), it is imperative for the hardware segment to evolve for modern software to work on it. That is true to some extent. Total deeptech funding climbed up to $1.6 billion for 2025, up from $1.1 billion in 2023. However, the number of funding rounds fell to 274 from 350 in the same time, indicating investors were more focused on their bets.

To boost the ecosystem, the central government has also approved the establishment of Startup India Fund of Funds 2.0 with a total corpus of ₹10,000 crore for the purpose of mobilising venture capital for the startup ecosystem of the country.

And there is also the India Deep Tech Alliance (IDTA), a consortium of venture capital funds and big corporates such as Nvidia and Qualcomm, which will look to invest about $10-15 million in startups across space, semiconductor, AI and defence.

A crucial part of developing the ecosystem is closer collaboration between industry and academia, where India still lags compared to the US and China. Ramapal Rao, vice chancellor of BITS Pilani, pointed out the country ranks 86 in that collaboration list.

"The academia identifies its own problems and solves them by writing papers. But many of these solutions are good till a proof of concept stage, beyond which scaling is a problem. What needs to be done is to create translation centres between these two, where the industry identifies the problem and finds people in the academia who are working in those areas to solve it," said Rao.

Microsoft expands Cloud cover: Hyderabad data centre goes live

AASHISH ARYAN
New Delhi, 6 August

Global software giant Microsoft on Thursday announced that its latest data centre in Hyderabad has gone live, allowing users in India to run eligible Microsoft Cloud services and workloads from the city.

"Built for the demands of the artificial intelligence (AI) era, it gives organisations more local choice to modernise critical systems, build new digital services, and turn AI ambition into measurable business impact through faster decisions, stronger customer outcomes, and new ways of working with enterprise-grade security, compliance, and governance, as services become available in the region over time," Microsoft said in a press note.

With the general availability of the Hyderabad data centre, Microsoft now has four Cloud regions in India, including Pune, Chennai, and Mumbai. The Hyderabad facility will be part of the firm's global Cloud infrastructure, comprising over 500 data centres across 80 regions in 34 countries.

"Making India AI-first is about bringing together the scale to support growth, the skills to unlock value, the sovereignty organisations expect, and the security they depend on," Microsoft India and South Asia

President Puneet Chandok said. The launch of the Hyderabad data centre comes as the company has registered double-digit growth in Azure in India over the past two years.

Overall, the installed capacity of data centres in the country has grown from 375 megawatt (Mw) in 2020 to about 1,575 Mw currently, according to government data.

The Hyderabad data centre is part of the more than $20 billion investment Microsoft announced for India last year.

In December last year, the firm said it would invest $7.5 billion in India between 2026 and 2029 to advance the country's Cloud and AI infrastructure.

This is in addition to the $3 billion investment Microsoft had announced earlier.
